Welcome to Hason Raja Centre
by Spitalfields Housing Association

The centre is a dedicated facility provided by Spitalfields Housing Association for the local community. This was built as part of the Pedley Street social housing development to meet the need for an affordable community venue.

The focus of the centre is:

- Health and wellbeing
- Lifelong learning
- Arts, crafts and architectural exploration

It is named after Hason Raja (1854-1922), a mystic poet and philosopher in Bengal (now Bangladesh) whose works emphasised universal love and transcending social boundaries.

About SHA

Spitalfields Housing Association was founded in 1979 by members of the Bangladeshi community in response to poor housing conditions in the Spitalfields area. Set up originally as a co-operative, the Association originally concentrated on developing large family-sized accommodation for Bangladeshi families. The Association registered with the Housing Corporation in 1980 and began an ambitious development programme, refurbishing what had been underdeveloped. We are now a general needs housing provider offering good quality housing and community services to those with the greatest needs in East London.
